THE LEGACY OF PIRACY
Absolute freedom forged
by one's own hand
remains no small
accomplishment.
Four hundred years ago,
men and women who "went on the account" faced
loss of life and limb.

Pirates were outcasts.
Each lived a hellish life
bound only by their code and helped only by their mates. Their ways were villainous, their souls were forfeit and their days
were shortened by
violence, starvation,
disease or the hangman's noose.

But what they left to history we still regard with awe: Absolute

freedom forged by one's own hand remains no
small accomplishment.

Some pirates became respected Governors, Mayors and wealthy land owners. They proved there really are men and women with the wit and strength to forge their own life
as they see fit, and the world be damned.

Succeeding by one's own wits and trusted friends feels good even in a game. Bound only by the code and helped by their mates, Black Skull
Buccaneers play this game
their way.

Join us if ye have the will and let the world be damned.

Yarr!

SING OUR PIRATES SONG!:

Against convention
we rebel

To sail the sea of briny foam

We drink with demons
straight from hell

And chase their asses
home

Chorus:

The waves be drunk and so are we

The moon be high and so are we

We're sinful dirty pirates
And we're sailing to be free

We'll blow yer ship to smithereens

Board yer women & belay
yer men

We'll sink yer bloody
brigantines

And haul yer treasure to our den

So flee the hull that flies the SKUL

Or Davey Jones will pick yer bones

Cannon balls and boarding
brawls
Are winsome cheers to
buccaneers (Song composed by DeadBob and -he swears-
a bottle of talking rum)

A rune to the SKUL Grog House is in the green "Latest Runes"
chest on the steps of the Book Store.
